

CTK 10 Editorial Note

The journal Con-textos Kantianos completes its first five years with the current issue, as its issue 0 was launched in November 2014. CTK 10 contains the monographic issue Kantian Cosmopolitanism. Tradition and Perspectives, coordinated by Angelo Ciatello (Univ. of Palermo, Italy), a topic actually scheduled for one of the first issues of this journal, which now puts together paper from Germany, Austria, USA and Italy. Some recent publications, as the collected volume released by Carlos Mendiola (Univ. Iberoamericana, Mexico) — En busca de la comunidad: Notas sobre el cosmopolitismo—, which some members of CTK Editorial Board contributed to, might be an excellent supplement to the topics tackled in this monographic issue.

The issue also contains a dialogue between María Julia Bertomeu (CONICET, Argentina) and Nuria Sánchez Madrid (University Complutense of Madrid, Spain) focusing on Kant's use of passive and active citizenship. A new translation into Spanish of Kant's text On Radical Evil also enriches the contents of the current issue. The Editorial Board considers that it makes sense to publish this new translation separately, as the original text appeared as an article in the Berlinische Monatsschrift, before becoming the first part of the book Religion within the Boundaries of Mere Reason. As usual, the translation counts on a short preliminary study by myself as translator and the section Kant's Translated Texts obeys to the commitment to foster and spread through CTK journal translations of Kant's writings into different languages. Finally, this issue contains the 2019 newsletter and five reviews of recent Kant-related essays and collected books.

It is worth to mention that Kant's Digital Library CTK E-Books has already published in four years eight titles (some of them in co-edition with other institutions). These are the last released volumes: The Chimera of the Philosopher King. Around the Kantian Distinction between Moral politician ans Political Moralist, authored by Roberto R. Aramayo (IFS/CSIC, Spain) in the series Hemeneutica Kantiana (<https://ctkebooks.net/hermeneutica/the-chimera-of-the-philosopher-king/>) and the collected volume Le radici del senso. Un commentario sistematico della "Critica del Giudizio" / Las raíces del sentido. Un comentario sistemático de la "Crítica del Juicio", edited by Mariannina Failla (Univ. Roma Tre) and Nuria Sánchez Madrid (University Complutense of Madrid) (<https://ctkebooks.net/dialectica/le-radici-del-senso/>) in the series Dialectica Kantiana.

More Kant-related news and activities were held in last months, as the Ist Workshop of the Latinamerican, Spanish and Portuguese Network Kant: Ethics, Politics and Society (RIKEPS) (<https://kantrikeps.es/>), devoted to the contemporary reception of Kant's legal and political philosophy with the aim to retrieve Kant's issues and topics to analyse key social, moral and political quandaries of our time. The Ist RIKEPS Workshop—with the title Reason, Law and Society: Actuality and Inactuality of Kant's Republicanism—counted with José Luis Villacañas (Univ. Complutense of Madrid, Spain), Pablo Oyarzun (Univ. of Chile, Chile), Luigi Caranti (Univ. of Catania, Italy) and Heiner Klemme (Univ. of Halle, Germany) as keynote speakers and the Assembly of members confirmed Nuria Sánchez Madrid (Univ. Complutense of Madrid, Spain) as coordinator of the Latinamerican, Spanish and Portuguese Network for next five years, which will count on a coordination board integrated by the Kant scholars Macarena Marey (UBA/CONICET, Argentina), José Luis Villacañas (University Complutense of Madrid, Spain), Julia Muñoz (UNAM, Mexico), Pablo Oyarzun (Univ. of Chile, Chile), Roberto R. Aramayo (IFS/CSIC, Spain) and Paola Romero (London School of Economics, UK). The last part of this coordination will coincide with the Tercentenary of Kant's birth in 2024, a date when the Immanuel Kant Baltic Federal University will organize the next Kant Kongress in Kaliningrad and a ephemeris that deserves to schedule conferences at a global scale.
